

Child Welfare

Overview: Child welfare and mental health services to New York's neediest and most vulnerable children and families.

I am a Director of JCCA (Jewish Child Care Association, for detailed information, see www.jccany.org), a non-profit organization which provides comprehensive care, through a variety of programs, to thousands of children, young people and families from New York City's area diverse communities. Programs include foster and residential care, educational assistance and remediation, case management for young people with mental health challenges and services to prevent child abuse and maltreatment. It is one of the oldest, most distinguished child and family services organizations in the nation, that has helped more than a million abused, traumatized and neglected children heal physically and emotionally through compassionate, quality care that enables them to lead independent productive lives.
